The announcement of this transformation has caused much comment in journalistic and political circles. It involves the retirement of Mr. Greenwood from the editorship, and the Sandard says that the principal sub-editor and the staff of writers who have made the Gazette's reputation will also withdraw from the paper. ### AN ATHEIST IN PARLIAMENT. Why Bradlengh Refused to Take the Oath-

LONDON, May 1 .- The report of the appointment of Mr. Farrer Herschell as Solicitor-General, which was contradicted, is now conpointed under the new Government will be reected without opposition, except Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, Home Secretary. The write for their redlection will be issued on Monday or Tuesday next. The House of Commons will adjourn on Tuesday until Thursday, the 20th inst., which will cover the usual Whitsuntide

The refusal of Mr. Charles Bradlaugh (returned as a Liberal for Northampton) to take the oath caused a sensation in the House of Commons yesterday. It is well known that Mr. Bradlaugh has long been a pronounced atheist an an equally pronounced Republican, and that he has pledged himself repeatedly to work for the everthrow of the monarchy and the establishment of a republic. In the various suits in which he has appeared before the courts, he has always refused to take an oath, alleging as his reason that he did not believe in God. On some occasions the objection was waived, and he was sitewest to affirm; in others he was held to be disqualified, since he declared that he had no religious belief whatever. But the oath required of members of Parliament is a seculiar one. By the repeal of the test oath in 1828, and by the Catholic Emancipation act of 1829. Catholic members were not required to swear to support the Protestant religion further than its contains the clause, "On the true faith of a thristian," In the case of Jewish members, the little is asked to dispense with this clause, and since 1868, when an act was passed authorizing this dispensation, the House has always granted it in the case of siew. Quakers are permitted to affirm, but they must say they do this on the ground that they believe God has forbiiden them to take an oath in His name. In every case the binding force of some religion is supposed to act. But Mr. Bradiaugh disclaims all religion, denies God, and will neither swear nor affirm. The other difficulty is that the loath or affirmation requires the members to promise to uphold the membriny, and this Mr. Bradiaugh will not be membriny, and this Mr. Bradiaugh will not promise to do, as he is piedged to work for its everthrow. The scene in the House was, accordingly, very interesting. Mr. Bradiaugh on being conducted to the Clerk's table, refused to take the oath, and stated his reason for so doing in clear but moderate language. A motion was made that he should retire while the liquide they have a leading aditorial article this moraing. CHANGES IN THE CHOIR LOFTS.

The New Votces that will be Heard in the Brooklyn Churches for the Coming Year. To-day is moving day in the choir galleries of Brooklyn. For weeks the music committees have been hearing all kinds of singers male and female, and the result of their choice will to-day be seen in their organ lofts. As a rule it is claimed that the music committees show little real ability to judge of music, and their selections go by favor, by the effect of personal appearance, and by social influence, to an extent which, singers claim, discourages true merit. The singers tell excellent stories of the pleces selected for them to sing by the music ommittee, which in most instances are opposite parts to those they sing, and are not adapted to show the range of their voices. The changes this year are numerous, but the most important choirs which have been carefully selected and trained in years gone by are retained. The return of good times has not vet been sufficiently feit in the churches to increase the pay of the singers, but good times are expected for them next year. It is observable that there is some disposition to got good precenters as a substitute for choirs. The cornet, however, finds no increasing friends. It remains in the Tabernacle.

In Plymouth Church a new soprane succeeds Miss Lockwood. She is Miss Hattle L. Sims, who has frequently appeared in English opera, in the "Bobemian Girl," the "Sorceror," and other compositions, with favor. The chorus will be increased to eighty voices from volunteers among the congression. Mr. Camp furnishes the music for about $5,000 a year.

There has been an important change at Grace Church on the Heights, where W. A. M. Diller, who has been organist continuously for thirty years, has resigned and Miss Virginia Woodward becomes his successor. There have been some changes in the quartet, and a change in the chorus with a view to encourage congressional singing. St. Ann's Church on the Heights, having become free of debt, returns to a paid choir.

At Dr. Cayler's Church Miss Nelly Ives, the site parts to those they sing, and are not adapt-a paid choir.

At Dr. Cuyler's Church Miss Nelly Ives, the soprano, leaves the choir gallery to become a bride. In St. Peter's R. C. Church, after to-day, the usual quartet will be succeeded by a chorus choir and a children's chorus. In the Strong Piace Baptist Church, Miss Carrie E. Mason of this city succeeds Mrs. E. J. Fitzhugh as soprano. Henry E. Duncan, son of Capt. C. C. Duncan, succeeds Archihald Arthur as organist and choir master of the Church of the Redeemer. The new soprano in the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church will be Miss Jonnie Grant, daughter of ex-Surrogate A. H. Dailey. A boy choir of wenty voices will appear to-day in the Fort Greene Presbyterian Church, where the Rev. Adam McClelland, the blind pastor, preaches. Miss Whittlesey will be the new soprano at the Reformed Church on the Heights.

Miss Josephine Losee, late of the Hanson Piace M. E. Church, will go to the Classon Avenue Presbyterian Church. In the Rev. Justin D. Fulton's Rink, Prof. In the Rev. Justin D. A volunteer choir, Octave Whittaker, the tonor, goes to the Middle Reformed Church in Harrison street, where the Rev. Dr. Ingerenoil is oastor. Prof. C. Mortimer Wise leaves the Bedford Avenue Reformed Church, There will be a volunteer choir in the Bedford Avenue Reformed Church, with John B. Weeks as chorister. The practice of "farming out" the music has been to a great extent abandoned. It has kept the "farmer." who agrees to give the church a quartet for a fixed sum, well paid; but the rest of the members of the choir have received mere driblets. The opposition to this system among singers has been so strong that, until hard times come again, its revival is not anticipated.

COURTNEY'S SPOON OARS.

A Design of his Own by which he Hopes to Defent Hanlan.

Charles E. Courtney, who is matched to ow Hanlan on the Potomac River, at Washington, on the 19th of this month, has caused to be made for him, in this city, a pair of racing oars unlike any heretofore used by professional oarsmen. They are fashioned after a design of his own. They were made at the shop of J. A. Baines, at 130th street and the Harlem River. and although many members of the Atalanta, Columbia, Gramercy, and Nassau Boat Clubs and other crews on the Harlem have seen them and sommented on their peculiarities, it was not known until yesterday for whom they were being made. Courtney ordered them on April 22, and they were said by the maker to be the serent "rig" about which Courtney has hinted in speaking of his coming race.

Mr. Baines exhibited the oars, but declined to give their measurements. They differ from other oars in being shorter in the outboard, with wider blades and longer inboard. They are less than nine feet in length, and buttoned at about thirty-one and ahalf. The blades are about thirty-one and ahalf. The blades are about thirty-one and ahalf. The blades are about thirty-one and ahalf to three pounds it two inches wider than ordinary oars. They are made of Canada spruce of extra quality, and the two are from two and a half to three pounds of having a short outboard is that he may not be acceptable of the number of strokes, and may obtain greater extrion.

In the longer oars that he has used, his friends claim that the tendency has been to buy the boat, thereby retarding the speed, while requiring greater exertion.

The oars were forwarded to Courtney, at Union Springs, vesterday afternoon, and they will be used for the first time in his practice on Monday. In making them the worken in his between the will a mishne a few days ago, similar to the one that befell Tlaisted. His row leek broke, the boat upset, and he was thrown into the water. ## Hanlan's First Trip Over the Potomac Course

-His General Satisfaction. WASHINGTON, May 1.-Hanlan took his first practice row upon the Potomac to-day. He favors the lower course, between the Long and Aqueduct bridges. There is ample room for a five-mile race, two and a half miles and a turn etween the two bridges, and the opportunities for seeing the race will be much finer on the lower course. While both the courses are exfor seeing the race will be much finer on the lower course. While both the courses are excellent, neither of them is straight away. At the Potomac boat house there is a bend, a very easy one, but a bend nevertheless. It is long and has but little effect. The man who wins the tose will take the Virginia side, and thereby gain a slight advantage. He can hug the shore along the bend, and avoid whatever current there may be. This advantage, though slight, will be worth having. The course will be flagged every sighth of a mile. If the lower course is chosen, stands for the accommodation of spectators will be erected along the Washington bank and on Analostan Island. The water that leads through the Aqueduct bridge has always been a nuisance to those fond of rowing. It sometimes completely drenches those passing under. The water will be drawn off on the occasion of the Hanlan-Courtney race.

Hanlan this morning walked out to the Analostan beat house. He took a long pull, going about 500 yards above the Aqueduct bridge and below the Long bridge. He rowed six or seven miles. He returned to Willard's this afternoon. In conversation he said he had examined the two courses and was decidedly in favor of the lower course. When he went under the Aqueduct bridge he couldn't tell where the water came from that dropped upon him. He expresses himself as satisfied with the lower course and said it would undoubtedly be adopted. It was not so good a course as he had rowed over, but was satisfactory. He said the Analostan boat house was the best structure of the kind he had ever seen, and he has been all over the world. Courtney is expected here on the loth. Frenchy Johnson is his trainer. It is also expected to put up at the West End Hotel in Georgetown.

MR. VANDERBILT'S DEPARTURE. Steamships whose Saloons were

An unusually gay throng gathered at the departure of the White Star steamer Britannic yesterday morning. Each one of the 200 saloon passengers seemed to have brought a troop of friends. The dining saloon was a flower garden. Each of the long tables was loaded with floral designs. Capt. Perry said he never saw such a crowd on board on a sailing day. Prominent among the passengers was William H. Vanderbilt. He was accompanied by his wife his daughter, his son G. W. Vanderbilt, and Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Sloan, with their three children. Mr. Vanderbilt said he could not tell what would be the extent of his trip. He intended to go to Liverpool, London, and Paris, but where else he could not say. He expects to return about Sept. 1. The family of his son. Cornelius Vanderbilt, will meet him at Paris, and Cornelius Vanderbilt himself will go out to and Cornelius Vanderbilt himself will go out to join them on the next steamer. On their return W. K. Vanderbilt will take his turn for a trip abroad. Wm. H. Vanderbilt will take his turn for a trip abroad. Wm. H. Vanderbilt was asked whether there is any truth in the report that he had sold 10.000 shares of stock in the Western Union Telegraph Company to Jay Gould. He replied emphatically that he had made no such sale, but, on the contrary, had bought more stock.

Among the other passengers of the Britannie were J. A. Appleton, Baron and Baroness Blanc, Bishop G. J. Esher, F. L. Hollingquist and family, Robert Jaffray, the Rev. George Ford, missionary to Syria; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. M. Missellie Miliken, and Miss Maggie Miliken, The steamer took cut a full cargo and a very heavy mail.

The salcon of the Neckar, as she lay at the Bremen Pier, foot of Third street, Hoboken, yesterday atternoon, had the appearance of a floral exhibition. At one end of the cabin a party of actors from the Thails Theatre were having a merry time chatting and drinking wine. They were wishing a happy voyage to Miss J. Meeta, who is going to Stuttgart to complete her musical education.

The Neckar carried 137 cabin passengers. Among them were Henry Koser, Imperial German Consul, and Mr. Charles Y. Roosevelt.

The Victoria of the Anchor line sailed at 11 o'clock. Among her passengers were the Revs. T. G. B. House, M. Dinamore, Z. S. Holbrook, and T. Lincoln Brown of Boston, and Mr. Julian H. Sterling of Bridgeport, Conn.

Among the passengers of the Dolivia of the Anchor line, which sailed yesterday, were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Addis of Edinburgh, Mrs. Capt. T. H. Stewart of Brooklyn, the Rev. C. H. Proctor of Boston, and Col. C. G. Thornton of Chicago.

The departure of the steamship England of the National line was delayed until to-day. She carries fifty-eight salcon passengers, among whom are the Lord Bishop of Nassau and Judge Danforth.

BURNED IN HIS HOME.

The Terrible End of an Imbecile Son of George Jackson of Little Palls, N. J. George Jackson is the principal manufacturer of Little Falls, N. J., about four miles from Paterson. He has several factories an-gaged in the making of felts, silks, and braids. On Friday night he sat in the little office in his house, near his principal mill, going over some accounts, and fell asleep. Shortly before mid-night he awoke with a feeling of chilliness, and threw some cedar brush on the smouldering embers in the old-fashioned fireplace. The dog in the mill at that moment barked furious-ly, and Mr. Jackson went into the mill to see if anything was the matter. Mr. Jackson is in the habit of visiting the mill office at all hours of the night. Finding everything all right, he went into the inner office in the mill, and began went into the inner office in the mill, and began to examine some books, and there he again fell asleep. He was awakened at about 1 o'clock by a strange noise, and looking out of the window, saw that his house was on fire. That part of the building where the office was located was in the heat of the flames. It is believed that the fire was caused by a spark from the cedar brush that he threw into the flreplace before he went to the mill.

Mrs. Jackson was absent in New York, and the only inmates of the house were an imbecile son. Thomas, who occupied the room over the office, and a daughter. Elizabeth, who slept in the second story in the front of the house. The daughter says that she was awakened by a feeling of suffocation. She saw that the house was on fire, and she tried to get some of her clothing, but was so choked that she could not breathe, and hastened to the door. She endeavored to reach the door of her brother's room, on her way out, to warn him of the danger, but the way was cut off by the flames, and she was barely able to make her escape into the street. She was overcome with nervous excitement, and some of the neighbors found her standing shivering in her scanty ciching in

Facts Worth Knowing.

Curious to know how a large trade can be carried on simultaneously in such dissimilar articles as books and dry goods, a reporter visited Mr. Kelly at 17 Barclay st. and interrogated him. and interrogated him.

"You can rest assured," said the proprietor, "that this house promises nothing but what it carries out to the letter." "You can ress so thing but what it carries out to home promises nothing but what it carries out to letter."

"Is there not some prejudice against this method of selling goods on the installment plan!"

"Then you buy for cash and sell on credit?"

"Precisely."

"That must involve a large onlay of capital?"

"Well, enough to run the business without pressing our customers too hard."

"But how, then, do you contrive to sell as cheaply as houses that receive cash down!"

"My dear sir, women as a general rule are good judges of dry goods. LIFE IN JEROME PARK.

Two Races, One Kneck Down, a Tumble, and a Narrow Escape. A handicap sweepstakes race by gentledomen riders, distance half a mile, and a race of five furlongs on polo ponies, came off yester-day afternoon over the Jerome Park course. Those races had caused considerable talk among the members of the American Jockey Club during the past week, and at least one hundred friends of the riders, including many adles, were present. Although a cold northwest breeze blew across the Park, the bright sun, freshly painted drags, bright green lawns, spring blossoms, and elegantly attired ladies made a picture beautiful to look upon.

First came the half-mile spin. The starters were: Mr. Robert Center on Erastus Corning. carrying 155 lbs.; Mr. J. G. K. Lawrence on Boilfield, 173 lbs.: Mr. Norcross on Vanderdecken, 150 lbs.; Mr. Norcross on Vanderdecken, 150 lbs.; Mr. J. F. Iselin on Mercury, 150 lbs.; and Mr. H. Alexander on Peanuts, 150 lbs.; and Mr. H. Alexander on Peanuts, 150 lbs.

After a rather tedious delay and several false starts the horses were sent away in compact order. Mr. Center took the lead at the start, Mr. Iselin showing in front before turning into the straight stretch. Mr. Norcross then showed the way to the finish, the horses making pretty bursts of speed as they ran past the grand stand. Mr. Iselin's horse swerved at at the last furlong pole, running across to the outside and almost into the fence. Mr. Norcross that furlong pole, running across to the outside and almost into the fence. Mr. Norcross passed under the wire a winner, nearly two lengths in front of Mr. Alexander, Messrs, Center, Iselin, Alexander, and Hunter following in the order named. Time, 53% seconds.

When Mr. Iselin passed the judges' stand on Mercury the horse was at top speed, close to the inside fence. A line of spectators that stood there made frantic efforts to get out of the way, Young Tom Brown, employed by Mr. August Belmont, but now engaged in the Jerome Park stables, stood with his back toward Mercury, looking at the leading horses. Mercury struck Brown with his breast square in the back. Brown with his breast square in the back. Brown went down as if shot. The blow was so powerful that it threw Mercury, Mr. Iselin diving over his head, landing on his face, and fortunately taking the saddle with him. Mercury passed clean over Brown, and struggled to his feet. As he rose it looked as though his fore feet would come down on Mr. Iselin's spine. The horses seemed to see this, and swung on his hind feat so as to save his master. Brown and Iselin were picked up, the former badly cut and injured about the head and body and the latter stunned and dazed. A medical examination showed that Tom Brown was not fatally injured. Mr. Iselin recovered sufficiently to ride in the pony race Belifield, 173 lbs.; Mr. Hunter on unnamed horse, 130 lbs.; Mr. Norcross on Vanderdecken.

THE GRAIN TRADE AROUSED.

Excitement in the Produce Exchange, Caused by the Action of Twombly & Co.

In the Produce Exchange, yesterday, at the second call of grain, Chairman Herrick the management of the new Central Elevators in this city, giving notice that on and after May 3 a charge of one cent per bushel will be made for elevating all grain, whether billed locally or through to foreign ports. This change, however, is not to be made on grain shipped from Buffao prior to April 26. The senior partner of the firm is H. McK. Twombly, a son-in-law of W. H. Vanderbilt.
David Bingham arose as soon as the reading of the letter was finished, and spoke of the letter as disrespectful to the members, adverse to as disrespectful to the members, adverse to their interests, and contrary to the established regulations of trade. He moved that the letter be referred to the Board of Managers, with the request that they act upon it promptly. Chairman Herrick expressed the opinion that this was no regular meeting of the trade, and that the disposition of the matter would not be discussed. Mr. Bingham thought otherwise, and his fel-

Mr. Bingham thought otherwise, and his fellow brokers agreed with him.

Mr. Herrick, therefore, retired from the chair, and Theo. J. Husted was chosen in his place.
Then Mr. Binghar reorened his resolutions.
Mr. Herrick said he did not think that Twombly & Co. were responsible for the order, but were simply following the instructions of the joint Executive Committee of the trunk line and Western railrends, who in a recent conference with the North Atlantic steamship conference equalized the through rate on grain designed for export via all ports, and voted to impose a uniform charge of one cent per bushel for elevating.

Mr. Bingham replied that it was impossible for the Exchange to reach the joint Executive Committee, but it could reach Twombly & Co. and discipline them, as they were members of the Erchange.

and the Preparations Making. For the past few weeks carpenters and painters have been at work in Gowanus, fitting up the free baths, which last year proved such a boon to the poor people of the city. When the season closed, last fall, the baths were removed to Gowanus Bay, where the tanks were sunk. After they have here been refitted they will be placed in position, as follows, on June 1: Battery, Gouverneur street, Fifth street, Thirty-seventh street, and 112th street, on the east seventh street, and 112th street, on the east side; on the west side, foot of Bethune street and Fifty-fifth street. The bath at the Battery was opened in June last, and this year a new structure will be opened. This bath was to have been placed at the foot of East Seventeenth street, but the street projects at this point, and the bath cannot be located there. If placed in the eentre of the block the bath would adjoin the small-pox hospital. The cost of this bath was $8,000, and it was delivered to the Department of Public Works in December last.

Last year over 3,000,000 persons enjoyed the clear water at the expense of the city. This season the baths will be onen every day in the week. Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays will be devoted to women bathers, and Sundays. Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays to men. The baths will be opened at 5 in the merning and will close at 9 at night, except in excessively warm weather, when they will be lighted up, and will remain open until midnight.

general merchants, doing business on South street, collected the $30,000 capital prize of the Louisiana State Lottery in the last drawing, of April 13. One of the seven members of the house said to a reporter that he personally would have no objection to endorse the promptness with which the lottery company paid the prize, but the whole transaction had been privately negotiated between one of his partners and Mr. Ricaro F. Kohly of Havana, the owner come entitled to the first capital prize of $30,000. He said that the facts were pretty generally known among the merchants. The money had been collected through Adams Express Company and paid without deduction on Saturday, April 24. The proceeds had already been disposed of to the credit of Mr. Kohly.

From another source the reporter was told that Mr. Kohly had sent an order by mail in the latter part of March for twenty-five whole tickets. The order was executed by Charles T. Bauer of 162 Pearl street, who purchased the invoice from M. A. Dauphin at 319 Broadway for $50. One of the tickets in the package was numbered 41,595, corresponding to the numbor which drew the first capital prize. Probabilities that the Great Tener was Polsoned by a Jealous Franciscan. ROME, April 15 .- The sudden death of Fra Giovanni del Papa two weeks ago was a severe shock not only to all lovers of music here, but was a matter for regret throughout all Europe. Glovanni, though a humble Franciscan friar, was probably the most perfect tenor that ever lived. Whenever he sang in the Sistine Chapel there was a crowd of worshippers, and his rich tones never failed to create a sensation—a religious sensation, which made the listener ligious sensation, which made the listener doubt that the voice echoing through the vaults of the chapel was merely the voice of a man. And Glovanni's nature was as eweet as was his voice. He was sought by princes temporal and spiritual, but he was at all times the humble friar. But his humility did not protect him from the petry jealousy of his brethren, who could not forgive him the attention that he received. It was generally known that his life was an uncomfortable one, though he himself made no complains. Glovanni died after a very few days of sickness, and his discass was pronounced sastire fever. But the peculiarity of the symptoms suggested foul play. Accordingly the body was exhumed, and an examination revealed arsenic in the stomach in large quantities. A friar has been arrested by the authorities, and the evidence against him is said to be very strong. But until further steps are taken the doulis are withhold from the public, which, meantime, is in a state of excited Indignation.
